Summary

People are happy and are supported to live their lives as they choose. Their voices are heard, and their independence is promoted. People's health needs are understood by care staff, and timely referrals are made to the appropriate professionals to seek advice and guidance when needed. The home is supported by a range of visiting health professionals to ensure people receive the care they need to remain as healthy as possible.

Care is delivered by an enthusiastic and familiar staff team, led by a highly effective senior manager. Care documentation accurately reflects that people are being cared for appropriately by care staff and in line with their personal plans.

The home provides a comfortable environment for people to live in which is safe, well looked after, and meets their needs. The environment is warm, clean, and decorated to a high standard. The Responsible Individual (RI) has oversight and visits the service regularly. There are clear systems in place to monitor the quality of care provided, the RI's three-monthly report and the services six monthly reviews are being undertaken and detailed.

Well-being

People are supported with their physical and social wellbeing. People, relatives, and health care professionals we spoke with are complimentary of the care staff and management of the home. We observed care staff assisting people calmly with dignity and respect. Care records give care workers the instruction required to support people accurately and are reviewed appropriately. Appropriate checks, such as weights, food, and fluids are being undertaken. We spoke with professionals; relatives of people living at the service and care staff and saw documentation which show referrals to relevant health care professionals are made in a timely way. We observed care workers have good knowledge of people's needs, refer to people in a positive way and it was clear they know the people they support well.

People can exercise choice and control over their every-day lives. We observed people enjoying the company of others in various seating areas. We observed interactions with people by care staff to be considerate and respectful of people's wishes. There is a choice regarding meals, and we saw people having alternatives if they do not like what is on the menu. We observed and people told us they could get up and go to bed when they wished. The provider seeks the views of people living at Meifod and Vicarage and the staff team.

People are protected from potential harm, abuse, or neglect. Care staff records are checked robustly. Training records show care staff have undergone appropriate training. There is a robust set of management audits in place which ensure any risks are minimized.

The home is clean, warm, comfortable and bedrooms reflect individuality. We viewed documentation which showed maintenance work has been identified. It is clear the provider is investing in the home.

Care and Support

People can be confident they are provided with the quality care and support they need which takes into consideration their personal wishes. We saw people have choices of what food they eat at mealtimes through menus, and we saw people who, when they told staff they did not like the options available, were given something different of their choosing. People we spoke with also confirmed this happened and the food was good. We observed mealtimes which were a pleasant experience for people, with good positive interactions happening. We saw people enjoying each other's company and spending time with care workers. We observed care staff interacting with people appropriately at their eye level and at the person's pace. People told us there were enough activities for them to be involved in, which we evidenced and which people clearly enjoyed.

People can be confident care workers have an up-to-date plan of how their care is provided. Personal plans are in place, reviewed regularly, and care workers told us documentation gives them enough instruction to undertake their role. This was confirmed by documents we viewed. People's personal plans and risk assessments give a detailed history of their medical conditions and reflect outcomes in professional and health care professionals' documentation found in people's records. We viewed staff handover documentation which was detailed. Care workers we spoke with confirm personal plans and risk assessments are an accurate reflection of the person they are supporting. We spoke with people and their relatives; all felt care staff support them in a timely way, discuss their or their relatives care with them and support the person in the way they wish. A relative told us care workers "Discuss any issues when needed around my relatives care and support needs."

Care and support are provided in a way which protects and maintains the safety and well-being of individuals. We saw care workers supporting people appropriately, at the persons own pace and with dignity and respect. People we spoke with confirmed care staff are kind, patient and gentle when supporting them. One person told us "Care staff don't rush us... they are kind-hearted... staff treat us very well." We saw people's dietary requirements are clearly detailed in people's care documentation and this information is available for staff in the kitchen and reflects information held in professional documentation. Records show care staff monitor people's food and fluid intake and weight. We saw people had plenty to drink which was also confirmed by people we spoke to. Care bells are answered quickly; care staff and people confirmed this, and it was observed during the inspection.

Environment

People live in an environment that is suitable for their needs. The home is warm, welcoming, and well decorated throughout. There is space for people to choose where they want to spend their time, and during the inspection we saw people sat in the different areas. We viewed a selection of bedrooms and saw they are well decorated, warm, clean and people can personalise them if they so wish. Memory boxes have been put on people's room doors which helps people orientate in regards their surroundings. People told us they are happy living at the home. We observed daily cleaning being undertaken by the domestic staff. Communal areas are hazard free. The home shows evidence of recent investment by the owners, with windows having been replaced and the conservatory roof scheduled to be replaced on the day of the inspection. The home has outside space which is secure for people to enjoy.

People can be confident they live in a safe environment. The main entrance is secure, and our identification was checked before we were permitted entry. People's care documentation is kept securely. All the relevant equipment and safety checks are being undertaken throughout the home.

Leadership and Management

Arrangements are in place for the effective oversight of the service, through ongoing quality assurance processes that review standards of care and compliance with regulations. Information and views of people obtained are used for the continued development and improvement of the service. A six-monthly quality assurance review has been completed in line with regulations, which considers the views of people using the service to ensure people are satisfied with the service they receive. We saw the RI undertakes their three-monthly reviews of the service appropriately. We saw senior managers have a comprehensive range of audits and checks in place, such as infection control reviews, to ensure the home is run effectively. There are a range of policies, such as safeguarding, infection control and medication, in place to ensure the service is run safely and as intended.

People can be confident senior managers take issues seriously and work to a high standard. Care staff told us managers take issues seriously and they receive good support from managers. One member of the care team told us “Any concerns would be listened to by senior managers... senior managers are approachable.” Another told us “Its lovely working here, managers and staff are great.” People and their relatives told us managers were approachable, whilst a professional we spoke with told us “Staff are proactive in getting professionals in.”

Care staff are employed in appropriate numbers to enable people to achieve their personal outcomes. Care workers said there are enough staff on duty and people are not left for extended periods of time, which was also confirmed by people we spoke with. We viewed paperwork which shows staffing levels are in line with the providers statement of purpose and what is expected by the managers. The provider also uses a tool to calculate the numbers of staff required, and this calculation is done regularly.

The provider ensures care staff receive supervision and appraisals. We also spoke with care workers who told us they receive enough training to undertake their role and people we spoke with told us care staff support them appropriately. We viewed records which showed care staff receive appropriate training. We saw staff recruitment is robust and care workers are registered with the appropriate bodies in regards their fitness to work.
