Summary

Children can make choices at the setting. They are happy and settled and enjoy their day. They feel safe and secure in the care of responsive staff who know them well. Children benefit from good opportunities for play and learning and develop independence.

Staff have a good understanding of how to keep children safe and healthy. They are patient, kind and caring towards children and each other. Staff support children's learning and development effectively through a range of activities and opportunities. These are led by children's interests and developmental needs.

The environment is safe and secure. It offers a welcoming space with a 'home from home' feel. Routine safety checks and certificates for the building are in place. The environment is set up to promote children's play and learning and there is an outdoor area which children access daily. Children have access to toys and resources that aid their development both indoors and outdoors.

People who run the setting are well qualified and experienced and place children's well-being at the heart of what they do. They regularly review the care they provide. The staff team are well supported. People who run the setting have established good partnerships with parents and outside agencies.

Children have opportunities to make decisions about how they spend their time at the nursery and can choose what to play with from the resources available to them. Children of all ages and stages of development express themselves confidently. They know staff listen to their needs and wants and show an interest in their play. Children's voices are strong at the setting. Their interests are considered when planning future activities.

Children are happy, settled, confident and enjoy attending the setting. They cope well with separation from their parents and carers and form positive emotional attachments with staff who know them well. Children benefit from the small size of the setting which ensures they are familiar with most staff; we saw them confidently greeting staff from all areas of the setting when they saw them. We saw younger children readily approach staff for reassurance and cuddles when needed and saw children across the setting confidently asking for help and support. Children are familiar with the routines which adds to their sense of safety and belonging. For example, we saw children calmly assemble at the 'sun cream salon' as they happily looked forward to going outside.

Children play well together and alongside each other according to their age and stage of development. Children are building friendships, and we saw them chatting animatedly to each other at lunch time. Most children are self-disciplined and understand the rules of socially acceptable behaviour. They show respect for people and take care of equipment and resources around the nursery.

Children are motivated and engaged in their play and learning. For example, we saw children listen attentively to stories, young children laughing as they ride on bikes in the garden, and children concentrating as they complete puzzles. There is a good balance between child led and adult led activities. Children have many opportunities to initiate their own play.

Children have good opportunities to develop their independence skills. We saw young children independently feeding themselves. Older children independently walk downstairs to access the toilet facilities and wash their hands, with encouragement and support from staff where needed. Children are encouraged to put their shoes on independently.

Care and Development

Good

Staff at the setting implement policies and procedures effectively to keep children safe and healthy. Staff we spoke to have a clear understanding of safeguarding issues, the signs and symptoms of abuse and their own duty to report concerns. They promote health and hygiene effectively. For example, staff encourage children to wash their hands after using the toilet, playing outside and before food. Staff encourage children to enjoy time out of doors as far as is possible, thus supporting them to benefit from fresh air. They are careful to ensure that children are kept safe in the sun, and we saw staff apply sun cream to children regularly, encourage them to wear sun hats and check the temperature and shading of the garden. Staff record accidents well and share this information with parents. Leaders at the setting monitor these to look for any patterns and trends. Staff record incidents and pre-existing injuries and leaders have started to develop systems to ensure these are also formally monitored and any follow up actions are systematically recorded. Staff manage medication safely at the setting and fill out documentation carefully and accurately. During the course of the inspection, leaders made changes to the documentation to further improve the clarity of the information recorded.

Staff manage behaviour well at the setting. They are kind, gentle, positive, and warm and this sets the tone for interactions at the setting. Staff are clear about boundaries, observant of children and gently and clearly encourage children to be kind and show respect for each other. For example we heard staff intervene gently to change the direction of play between two children when they saw one child start to become unsettled. Staff know children well and naturally adjust the care and the behaviour strategies they use to suit each child, being mindful of their stage of development.

Staff support children's learning and development effectively. They regularly observe children's play and learning to track their progress. This helps them plan activities to encourage children's next steps in learning and development. We saw that children's views, interests and reactions to activities are recorded and considered when planning further activities and new developments. Staff are observant and alert for signs that children may have emerging additional learning needs. Children with additional physical or learning needs are supported very well and staff make many adjustments, to ensure they receive care appropriate for their needs. They are pro-active and work well with outside agencies to support these children. Staff know children extremely well and are knowledgeable as a team and individually about all aspects of their care, however not all the information that staff shared during the inspection was noted in children's files.

EnvironmentAdequate

The environment is generally safe, secure and well maintained indoors and outdoors. The front door is locked, staff ensure only authorised entry to the setting and maintain a visitor's log. The outdoor area is securely fenced. There are risk assessments in place and safety measures such as stair gates throughout the property. Staff complete daily safety checks indoors and we saw them check the garden for safety and to ensure it was a suitable temperature before children went outside. Fire procedures are in place and staff carry out fire drills. However, records show these are not carried out regularly enough to ensure all children are familiar with evacuation procedures.

The environment is suitable, welcoming and child friendly. The setting operates from a house, adding to the 'home from home' feel. For example, children happily greet the leaders of the setting by name as they walk past the office and the kitchen to visit the toilet. The setting has furniture to support children's independence. For example, child sized tables and chairs. There is an outdoor play area which children evidently enjoy. Although small, it presents some interesting opportunities for children to play and learn. For example, we saw how some children enjoyed riding on bikes, some enjoyed balancing on tyres and still others played happily in the toy house. There are a suitable number of children's toilets and nappy changing facilities available.

Children have access at their level to some interesting toys and resources that aid their development. However, all children did not have free access to a wide range of indoor toys on the day of inspection. The resources are clean and in a good state of repair.

Leadership and Management

Good

People who run the setting are well qualified and experienced. They place a high priority on creating a warm, caring, home from home setting for children. There is a clear and up to date statement of purpose enabling parents to decide if the setting is right for their child. There are suitable policies and procedures in place which are regularly reviewed, however a minority of these would benefit from further review to ensure they are clear. There are also systems in place for recording, filing and organising paperwork.

People who run the setting carry out self-evaluation and plan for improvements. They obtain feedback from parents, children and staff and reflect on practice to produce a Quality of Care report annually. They have fully engaged in the inspection process as a means to improve quality.

Staff files are up to date and people who run the setting undertake all relevant checks to ensure staff are suitable to work with children. Staff we spoke to told us they were happy and supported. People who run the setting ensure staff receive supervision and appraisals and hold regular staff meetings. Supervision records and staff meeting records evidenced that working relationships between the people who run the setting and the staff team are strong and a culture of openness and honesty is encouraged.

People who run the setting and staff seek to establish positive relationships with parents and maintain good communication. They share information via an app and handover at the door and provide opportunities for further discussion if needed. They have established good relationships with outside agencies and professionals and work in partnership with them to provide quality care for children. They ensure that when there are concerns about children's progress or development, they share information and work with parents and professionals to support children. Parent feedback indicated good levels of satisfaction with the care their children receive with comments such as 'I could not think of a better setting for my child'.
